Alabama Victory Over Penn Eleven Furnishes Biggest Upset of Week-End Football Contests Southerners Trample on Dope In Beating Navy's Conquerors

Lafayette Loses Prestige as Result of Defeat by W. and J.; Harvard Continues Its Victorious Campaign by Easily Downing Florida's Eleven

By W. B. Hanna

One of the queer twists of scores football provides betimes is found in Saturday's results, and no further away than Philadelphia. Alabama strayed away from the magnolias and redbirds for a day, dropped in on Penn at Philadelphia and beat the high stepping Quakers on their own field. In the weekly quota of the unexpected the day furnished none

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 5.—F. W. Moore, Harvard graduate manager, tonight announced that 5,400 graduates of Harvard who had applied for three tickets each to the Harvard-Yale football game November 25 could be supplied with two tickets only, while Yale authorities had found it necessary to take similar action with 8,000 Yale graduates who had applied for three seats.

He said that applications exceeding the capacity of the Bowl by 18,500 had been received.

With the aid of a liberal handicap of 7½ minutes, A. Jacobs easily won first prize in the Pastime Athletic Club's walk for members decided over the Elks' course in the Bronx yesterday. M. Aggerholm, with a like allowance, was second, forty yards back of the winner. W. Allen, who conceded 2½ minutes to both Jacobs and Aggerholm, was third. He lost the place prize by ten yards. Twelve pedestrians made up the field, and all covered the full distance of four and a quarter miles.

Lafayette was cuffed by W. and J. and fell from its high estate, and on Friday the Navy won back some prestige by besting Penn State. Harvard and Yale both came through nieely. Harvard beath for its without being pushed and to date has made the smoothest campaign of all, but without meeting as many strong teams as Yale, the Navy and Syracuse have done.

Nebraska, coming out of the West with a big reputation, was beaten by Syracuse, the latter, therefore, making a gallant rally, after games with Brown, Pittsburgh and Penn State and not a victory in the lot. The Nebraska defeat didn't boost the West's reputation for football prowess.

Cornell is booming along, and Columbia felt the might of the Ithacans. The Morningside men were overwhelmed. They weren't in Cornell's class. Princeton had a right lively afternoon with Swarthmore. The Tigers won, but it was shown that their goal line is a long ways from impregnable. Yale's victory over Brown was decisive and shows the Elis are formidable.

Among the teams meeting their first defeat by a college team was Georgetown, and Holy Cross was the medium for the lacing. Of the local teams N. Y. U. won from Trinity, C. C. N. Y. took a victory to its rival, Amberst Aubing a still rules the roost in its own set in the West, and with Wisconsin, which beat Minnesota, is making the running. The Wolverines cleaned up the Michigan Aggies. Notre Dame, too, is still among the top-notchers. Notre Dame beat Indiana easily, and this week the Army will have a chance to lock over the West-eners' gridiron merchandise.

Changes in Hockey Rules Adopted

By College Body

Several important changes in rules were adopted yesterday at the annual fall meeting of the Intercollegiate Hockey Association at the Hotel Pennsylvania. Delegates from the eight colleges comprising the association, namely Yale, Harvard, Princeton, Dartmouth, Cornell, Columbia, Pennsylvania and Hamilton, attended the meeting, and in addition to the changes in the rules a schedule was arranged.

Among the rule changes was one which provides that a team may make an unlimited number of substitutions during the course of a game at any time affort to secure an official point on this point I have written E. Meanwhile New York University's sosition in regard to the disputed game is that N. Y. U. won, 7 to 6. A. B. Blossom Time May Not Run in Pimlico Special

Run in Pimlico Special

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 5.—Although the management of the Maryland Jockey Club is going ahead with arrangements for the running of a special race for the eight, horses that finished among the first four in each of the Pimlico futurities, there is some doubt now that three of them will be able to go to the post.

E. R. Bradley's Blossom Time, which won the first Futurity, came out of the race sore and may not be able to race again for several days. Donges, which finished second to her, is also reported to be in bad shape. He is unsound, but had received careful preparation for the Futurity. His legs have given him trouble since coming cut of the race. Little Celt had a slight filling in one of his legs before the big race and since then the filling the big race and since then the filling has increased, so that Sandy McNaughton is not certain his colt can go to ton is not certain his coit can go to the post in the special.

Sally's Alley, on the other hand, re-turned to her stable after her bril-liant victory in excellent condition, as did the others of the eight horses en-titled to run in the special for the word cup offered by the management of the course.

Steinbugler Is Cue Victor C. J. Steinbugler scored his first victory in the special balkline tournament at Lawler Brothers' Billiard Academy last night, when he defeated Ed McGill by 150 to 138. The victor had a high run of twenty. J. R. Johann is first in the standing with five victories and no defeats.

Upheavals on the gridiron are so prevalent this season that so-called form is becoming rather a thing to be despised. But even so, the defeat of Nebraska was at the hands of the Syracuse eleven on Saturday must stand forth as a cataclysmic collapse of well-founded hopes, such as will linger long in the memory of the Cornhakers.

The Westerness had expected to win the grant of the the standard of the grant of the gr these cases some overzealous chap was detected in the act of foul interference. Yet these flashes gave inklings of what might have been expected had the big red machine been functioning smoothly, as it must have done to run up scores such as it had against opposition of acknowledged caliber.

For another thing, the aerial attack of the Westerners was practically nil, and Eastern audiences have come to expect much in this respect of any and all Western teams. In justification of their failure in this detail, however, it should be added that the team had been closely scouted for some time, and Syracuse knew pretty well what methods might be expected. Menhan primed his team particularly on one of the best defenses against a successful passing game, that is, to rush the passer and close in on him before his team can get a man into the open.

Skill in Covering Punts

Furthermore, the Nebraska receivers were well covered at all times. Not once during the game did they really get a man into position to take a pass, even on the move, without opposition. And for the most part the ball was simply heaved down the field, right or left, with plenty of force and lots of good intentions, but with little chance dentally, showed up rather lame on the aerial game, but it was learned later that Meehan had only one man in the backfield rated good at passing, and he was playing with his right arm bandaged in such a way that he couldn't do any passing.

In one respect the Westerners showed to marked advantage. That was in covering punts. In spite of the fact that the rush line provided ample protection to the kicker, frequently as man, after he received the ball. In this department they showed to very much better advantage than either opponents.

W. H. Burnett won the Class A prize in the eighteen-hole play against par on the links of the Fox Hills Golf Club yesterday afternoon. Burnett was 1 up. The Class B competition resulted in a tie between W. W. Lloyd and Frank Riley, each beirg 1 up.

The outstanding feature of Nebraska's failure was the inability to get going with an attack of effectiveness and continuity. Once or twice in a fit of sheer desperation Dawson's backs slashed past the Syracuse flanks with a drive that looked formidable. But it so happened that in almost all of these cases some overzealous chap was detected in the act of foul interference. Yet these flashes gave inklings of what might have been averaged.
